

Reflection on The 6th Next-Generation Global Workshop

ANG Siang Chin, University Putra Malaysia

The workshop was well organized. I found the conference useful in that the time allocation of the discussion is sufficient. A lot of ideas and constructive comments can be received. Every session ran out on time, systematic and in an organized way.

My background is psychology rather than sociology, therefore, I can feel a bit unfit to my paper with the conference themes. However, I really appreciate for organizing this workshop and what was valuable was to be involved with multi-disciplinary aspect of this conference.

However, the duration of the conference was a little bit too long hours. Therefore, audiences may feel exhaustive to receiving and listening the information that authors want to express during the presentation. It would be better if the organizer could collect and put the more connected / relevant topics in a theme, instead of putting diverse focal papers together.
