

Reflection on The 6th Next-Generation Global Workshop

BHANDARI Pitambar, Tribhuvan University

The most useful aspect of the workshop is about the commentators comment on my paper and also the composition of the participants and intergenerational as well as intercontinental interaction. The relevance of the theme chosen was contemporary and provide the future avenue for further research. The commentators' contribution to session varies, however, in my own case, the commentators' contribution was excellent. I found it very insightful and very good. In general the comments from professors was very good.

Since the workshop provides empirical evidences through various presentations and theoretical frameworks, it assists to framing the ongoing research activities. The workshop provides an academic relational platform for future negotiation and issues related communication.

It would be better if the peer review of the paper presented by participants could be done before finalizing those papers.