13/9/2014 – 20/9/2014

Learning outcome: The most interesting part in the academic trip at Kyoto university is “ 8 days at Kyoto University”. We had an opportunity to study with professors from various academic institutions and also visited Kyocera, Nishijin and Ozaki farm. The way that Japanese professor analyses the issue in the ASEAN is very impressive particular in politic economy knowledge which I found out that is beneficial for me. I want to use this aspect for my research because I think the politic economic ideology is important in current situation because today, we can't focus on not only economic sector but also in the social and environment sector for the sustainable economic development to gain regional cooperation and security. I think it is useful for my research which I try to gain ASEAN interesting and regional prosperity.”

Experience in Japan is a precious and valuable moment, although our culture is difference form Japanese. It changed my viewpoint and opened my world. No doubt that I like a lot of things in Japan such as culture, tradition, city planning, public health, communication, university management, lifestyle and the way that Japanese people think. I think we can adapt particularly the Inamori and Ozaki philosophy to our lifestyle.

The impact of the program on your career plans go to the Kyoto University is that it opened my world. I realized that it is a good opportunity for me to learn a lot of things from Japan and adapt them to my research and I truly believe that the academic trip to Kyoto University made me gain new knowledge to fulfill my career to be a diplomat. I found out that the lectures and the case studies by every professor could also develop and be adapted to my research in the future as well.
